

Reading Matters at School: Practitioner Training

This training programme is aimed at education practitioners such as Learning Support Assistants, Librarians and other support staff within schools. It provides a valuable insight and access point for those who work with struggling readers within school.

Overview

- A flexible, in-depth training course
- For up to 12 participants
- 30 learning hours including 2 training days and an accreditation review session
- Awaiting confirmation of accreditation National Open College Network Level 3 'Supporting Reading Development'
- All training notes provided by Reading Matters
- An insight into the literacy curriculum and how children develop reading skills
- Build participants' own subject knowledge of texts, grammar and punctuation
- Develop strategies to improve pupils' reading skills and confidence
- Develop experience and confidence in supporting pupils to become enthusiastic and confident readers

Content

Main skills and knowledge to be learned:

- Understand literacy curriculum and deliver reading support activities in school
- Understand the strategies that fluent readers use
- Know and use different types of texts when supporting reading
- Know and use different types of vocabulary when supporting reading
- Know and use basic grammar and punctuation effectively
- Evaluate and explain choices of appropriate reading resources
- Understand the importance of improving literacy skills to raise confidence and self esteem
- Reflect on and record professional development as a Reading Support Practitioner

Cost

Please contact 01274 692219 to discuss your specific requirements.